ProEnergy Services EPC Leases Space at 907 Detroit

ProEnergy Services, which provides cost-effective, safe and reliable service to the global energy industry, has signed a lease for 3,770 square feet at 907 Detroit in downtown Tulsa, according to Oklahoma Property Investors' President Rhonda Walters.

The Missouri-based company will house its EPC Services division in Tulsa. ProEnergy's EPC Services has utility, petroleum and government experience in providing turnkey EPC Services focused on the engineering, design, procurement and construction, start-up and commissioning of power plants, petroleum production facilities, NASA wind tunnels, automated fuel-handling equipment, control systems, test stands and turbine packages. ProEnergy Services delivers services globally through the company's U.S. and international offices. The company has U.S. offices in Sedalia, Mo.; Atlanta; and Houston; and overseas locations in Argentina, Mexico, Venezuela, Pakistan and Ghana.

ProEnergy was founded in 2002 by President Jeff Canon. The company was started based on Canon's commitment to providing a cost-effective, safe and reliable service to the energy industry. Since then, the company has grown to include more than 400 employees with a network of an additional 100 independent contractors. ProEnergy Services currently operates and maintains over 2500 MW of power generation facilities worldwide. "We're excited about the opening of our Tulsa office," said Kent McAllister, ProEnergy Services' Director of Marketing and Operations. "Our new office is centrally located and close to many of our partners and clients. 907 Detroit, specifically, puts us minutes from downtown, major thoroughfares and the airport. It's an exciting time to be in Tulsa. Oklahoma Property Investors does a great job locating, upgrading and managing properties like this."

"We're thrilled that ProEnergy Services has entered the Tulsa market and decided to locate at 907 Detroit," said Walters. "They are a highly regarded company in the energy industry and a welcome addition to our growing tenant roster." Oklahoma Property Investors' provides value to tenants by offering affordable, professionally managed, high-quality office space with world-class services and amenities.
